

The girl walking home.

After school Sally was walking home down to her house. She had to go through the road down to a forest then across the road and she's home. It's winter in Alabama so it's freezing she had a black McKenzie jacket on.

After school she walked down the road. She has to go into the forest. She's a bit scared but there's a pathway where you can see her house so she is probably safe. She has an umbrella because it's starting to rain. She hears something that sounds like a car.

While walking she trips and kidnappers pick her up and throw her in the back of the van. Sally is sweating bricks. She is cold and dirty. They say they're bringing Sally back home so she feels a bit safer but the kidnapper throws sleeping dust in the back of the van and she fell asleep for an hour. She woke up in a basement.

She's in the basement and they are holding her for ransom for 100k. She is by herself. She isn't locked up but the basement is locked. She is trying to entertain herself but she can't find anything to do.

She hears some sirens from outside. It is the sound of the police they barge the door open and Sally's free and the kidnapper goes to jail. Sally is still a bit shock but the police still have to ask Sally some questions to her to get more information. Sally answered all the questions and was sent back home to her family.

Sally was fine but after that she got the bus home.

By Keelan O'Neill